Application of this policy

This Policy applies in relation to the exercise of voting rights and other corporate actions attaching to investments held by investors through the products offered by Ventura.

Key principles

Ventura recognises that corporate actions provide valuable rights that should be managed and exercised in the best interests of investors as a whole.

Ventura has an obligation to, and will, act in the interests of investors as a whole at scheme level and will not act on the instructions of individual investors in relation to corporate actions.

As the products offered by Ventura operate subject to a custodial holdings structure in each case, Ventura will adopt a neutral position and abstain from voting on company or scheme resolutions and will not allow individual investors to exercise voting rights in relation to securities held by them.

Corporate actions policy

5.1 Policy Background

The IDPS operated by Ventura and other schemes offered by Ventura allow for investments in a variety of professionally managed portfolios of securities. These securities may include shares in companies, exchange traded funds and units in managed funds that may have voting rights attached to them. These investments are held by an appointed custodian, on behalf of investors.

Whilst individual investors retain the beneficial interest in the investment options of their own portfolio, investors are not the registered owner of any of the investments in their portfolio, and cannot participate in meetings of investors, nor have any voting rights.

Disclosure has been provided within the relevant product disclosure statement for the schemes and the IDPS Guide for the IDPS, and application forms to inform investors and their authorised representative of restrictions in this regard. By signing the application form, investors are taken to have accepted the consumer warnings provided, acknowledging voting rights will not be available to them when investing through any product offered by Ventura.

5.2 Receipt of Communications

Ventura, through its external custodians will receive all communications relating to corporate actions affecting individual securities held in investor accounts.

Corporate actions notifications may be provided to the relevant model managers through the Administrator's model management interface or the IDPS interface.

Corporate actions notifications will not be provided to individual investors.

5.3 Voting

Ventura will act in the best interests of investors as a whole and will consider whether it is in the best interests of investors to vote on company or scheme resolutions. To satisfy the collective interests of investors within a custodial holdings structure or IDPS, Ventura will generally adopt a neutral or impartial position and will not vote at meetings of holders of securities.

Ventura may exercise its discretion to vote in certain or exceptional circumstances. Where Ventura exercises its discretion to vote, any vote will reflect the interests of the scheme as a whole, without regard to any single investor's circumstances.

Ventura will not accept instructions from investors to vote on company or scheme resolutions.

5.4 Receipt of dividends and dividend reinvestment plans

Ventura will generally elect to receive dividends and distributions in cash, which will be credited to the cash holding component of each individual investor's account.

5.5 Model manager discretions

Ventura expects model managers to act on corporate actions in order to achieve stronger investment outcomes over the long term. Ventura may accept instructions from a model manager in relation to corporate actions other than proxy voting.

This Policy must be made available to any investor free of charge on request. Ventura will make this Policy available to Members on its website.
